Activity 10.1: Lecture Style Inventory

Lecturing effectively is a challenge. We know a good lecture when we hear it, but it can be difficult to apply what we experience listening to someone else lecture to improve what we do as lecturers in our own courses. The Lecture Style Inventory is an informal assessment of instructor preferences when offering lectures. It is intended to help you understand your likely lecture style, plan lectures more effectively, and provide a starting point for discussion of teaching preferences and styles among colleagues.

You will find a set of items, each with four possible responses. Using five as the total number of points you must assign, distribute point values to the words or phrases that best represent your identification as a teacher. For example, the image and link below show how three people might score responses to the prompt of how they would describe themselves differently through their point assignment:

10.1 sample response

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Person 1 | 3 | Accomplished | | Dynamic | | High Achieving | 2 | Knowledgeable |
| Person 2 | 1 | Accomplished | | Dynamic | 3 | High Achieving | 1 | Knowledgeable |
| Person 3 | 1 | Accomplished | 2 | Dynamic | 1 | High Achieving | 1 | Knowledgeable |

Simply self-assess your lecture style by ranking how well the different categories reflect your plans for your lecture, from 4 (most important) to 1 (least important).

| Tell a story to illustrate the point, hopefully connecting the point to students' everyday lives | 2 |
| Engage in a spirited discussion | 0 |
| Demonstrate the answer to the question | 0 |
| Total | 5 |

18. When taking questions that I don't know the answer to during a lecture, I tend to respond by...

| | |
|---|---|
| Telling the student that I'll research the answer and get back to them | 3 |
| Connecting to what I do know and trying to deduce the answer | 1 |
| Taking my best guess and engaging in conversation about it | 0 |
| Think about how to determine and communicate the answer | 1 |
| Total | 5 |

19. To conclude a lecture, I often...

| | |
|---|---|
| Summarize key points | 4 |
| Tell story or offer a quotation that highlights the key points | 0 |
| Tell a joke or an amusing anecdote that will help students remember | 0 |
| Demonstrate or offer a final performance | 1 |

| Replay the best anecdotes, stories, etc., and store them away for next time | 0 |
| Reflect on aspects of what I did well in the presentation and how I could do better next time | 3 |
| Total | 5 |

Activity 10.1: Lecture Style Inventory

Scoring: Should show a total number for each category so learners can match their totals to their styles.

Fascinator: 49
Fascinator: The Fascinator hopes to share important information and ideas related to the topic, including key concepts and interesting details. This type of lecturer will try to find the best organizational method for conveying the information so learners will best understand it. The Fascinator has studied the topic for a long time and wants to find the best way to share this knowledge with learners.

Inspirer: 23
Inspirer: The Inspirer wants to convey and instill passion for the topic. This type of lecturer shares the essence of the subject with the learners but wants them to connect with it on another level. Inspirers will often use a story or several stories from their own experiences, or from others' experiences, to convey important points. This type of lecturer wants to inspire confidence and instill inspiration that can make students want to learn.

Energizer: 6
Energizer: The Energizer often feels energized when lecturing and in return tries to share that energy with learners. This type of lecturer wants learners to be excited not only by the content of the lecture but also by the presentation of it. The Energizer seeks to build excitement and enthusiasm among learners. The Energizer will likely tell a few jokes and use fun activities to encourage learner involvement.

Performer: 22

Performer: While Performers have information or processes to convey, they at least partly see their job as engaging and entertaining learners. This type of lecturer will think through the lecture from start to finish ahead of time, including the theater of it, such as where they will stand, how they will use gestures, and what points they will emphasize verbally or visually. Performers want learners to view them as professional and prepared to present. They may well see themselves as a part and parcel of the presentation and may have a flare for the dramatic.
